DOLLY'S DAY AT KANN'S.

Festive Occasion Yesterday at the Busy Corner.

Strangers in Washington yesterday no doubt concluded that the girls here were celebrating some such festive occasion as "doll day." On all the streets leading toward Kann's Busy Corner, 8th street and Market space, came girls of all sizes and conditions and ages, from toddling babes to misses well up in their teens. They had all heard of the announcement in The Star of Friday that Messrs. S. Kann, Sons & Co. had arranged to gladden the hearts of 12,000 little misses by presenting them free of cost with wee, cute stockings for their dear

Therefore they trooped joyously toward "The Busy Corner"-big girls and little ones; brown girls, white girls, black girls; fat girls and thin ones; tall girls and short girls, illy-clad and well dressed, but all smilling and as happy as cherubs. And the dolls they carried-for each girl had a doll, and some had two and three-were of every known size, shape, color and description, from the alley tot, with its one-penny plgmy doll or rag baby, to the child of well-to-do parents with its life-size dolly of the most costly and elaborate Parisian make. Wooden dolls and china dolls; bisque dolls and 'homely rag ones, were in ocession, which seemed never ending, children of the rich touched elbows with the waifs of "the other half" in the push which was teeming toward the dollstocking counter in the toy department of Kann's, where for a while twelve clerks were kent busy fitting cute little stockings toy limbs of kid, of china, of wood and

It was a busy time, and the Messrs. Kann had the satisfaction of knowing that they had made happy so many of the little women of Washington, even if it did cost them a great outlay of cash.

One of the dolls brought to the store was placed on exhibition by the Messrs. Kann during the day and bore the inscription: "Dollie Lillie, London. Born, 1845." It is the property of Virginia Prosise of 1715 North Capitol street. A little black pickaninny presented a doll to be fitted that was as black as tar.

The stockings given away were minia-tures of the noted Burson goods, that which will be made a specialty by the Messrs. Kann for children and women during the oming fall and winter. They are made by the Burson process, without cutting and plecing, each stocking being completed before leaving the machine.

FOR LAST WEEK.

In the typhoid fever situation there was a little change for the better during the past week, but the number of cases reported is still far above the average predicted many months ago for the time when the effects of filtration should begin to be felt. It was almost at the beginning of the typhoid fever outbreak when Health Officer Woodward, in an authorized interview, stated that he would be greatly disappointed if the fever did not show a decrease of at following. least 90 per cent within three weeks after the entire water supply was subjected to filtration. The time appointed has now almost arrived, but the promised signs of decrease are almost, if not entirely, lacking. Typhoid fever is decreasing in a measure, it is declared, but the diminution in number of cases is discouragingly gradual, and every few days there are sudden increases when it would seem that the malady was regaining all of its malignant vigor. As stated in The Star a week ago, there was a total of twenty-eight new cases reported during the seven days ended October 14, and this was commented upon favorably because it marked the lowest point reached since early July. During the week ended with the close of the health office records last night, however, there were thirty-six new cases brought to notice, and this is taken as particularly significant because of the near approach of the time when typhoid fever, according to the health office, should be almost an unknown quantity.

High Average Continues.

When the outbreak of the fever was at its very worst there were ninety-five new cases reported in one week, but the average per week during all of the three months-July, August and September-when conditions verging on an epidemic obtained, would not exceed sixty cases. According to this, the records of the ensuing week, at the latest, should at some time before next Saturday show a sudden drop to less than one new case per day. It has already been many times explained that typhold fever germs multiply within the human system and give some indication of their existence within three weeks of the time of their absorption. If the water supply has been subject to purification for three weeks, therefore, all persons who drank typhoid germs with draughts of Potomac water before that time must either have been stricken with the disease or else have dem-onstrated their immunity. Ever since Octoper 5 the whole of the 71,000,000 gallons of water supplied to the District each twenty-four hours has passed through the sand purifiers at the filtration plant—and if the rule just stated obtains in Washington the water supply should be safe for all normal use this week. If the disease continues in its present ratio it is declared that either the health department's conclusions as to the value of filtration need revision or else the prevalence of typhold fever should be traced to some other source.

DEMAND JURY TRIAL

Parties Charged With Conducting an Unlicensed Entertainment.

Julius and Irene Emmner, the spiritualistic mediums who were arrested by Sergeant Bode of the police department recently, were arraigned in the Police Court yesterday on a charge of running an unlicensed entertainment. They pleaded not guilty to the charge and demanded a jury trial. The hearing was therefore continued until it can come up in the course of the regular jury assignments later in the fall.

The charge placed against the defendants at first was that of larceny by trick. Assistant District Attorney Given announced yesterday, however, that he had noile prossed that warrant, thereby deferring any action of that kind until more investigation can be made. The charge of running an unlicensed entertainment was filed against them as being the most logical one. The defendants gave bond in the sum of $200 for their appearance in the court when their case is tried, and they were released on that bond. The $300 collateral which they put up in the other case was returned

Mrs. Smallwood became worried when he falled to write a second time and is anxious to have the police find him.

NEW CASES OF TYPHOID FINAL SESSION HELD STATUSOFPOOLSELLING RELIEF CORPS ORDER CORPS ORDER

MARYLAND AND VIBGINIA.

With the decision of Judge Waddill against the alleged gambling fraternity at Jackson City and that of a Maryland jury in favor of the pool room at Kenilworth, local sports claim they hardly know where they stand. It is regarded as certain that the Virginia decision will put the "lid on" at Jackson City, but it is uncertain what will be the outcome of the Maryland verdiet. Had the verdict not been followed by the remarks of Judge Merrick condemning in unmeasured terms the findings of the jury, the result would have been easily understood. The pool room would probably have been reopened as soon as the backers of the game could have procured a wire, but, in view of the court's comment, it is believed some consideration will have to be given the question before anything is done in the matter of opening the room to the

They much prefer to post bets at a pool room. however, because they have something to show that their money is up, and feel confident that they will get the returns when they are fortunate enough to play upon a Views of a Track Man.

"Putting up money on the hand books is about the same as putting it up on the tracks where tickets are not given as receipts for money bet," said one to a Star reporter today. "There are too many chances for mistakes when such betting is resorted to, and the winner sometimes loses his money. It's bad business any way you put it, and no good can come from it, but it's a difficult task to stop the betting on torses, and it will never be stopped until the races are stopped.

"Unless the authorities can get at the root of the evil they will find it a difficult matter to apply a remedy."

But for Judge Merrick's criticism of the jury's verdict it is believed the Kenilworth pool room would have been in operation yesterday had the promoters of the game succeeded in getting a wire. It is said that under the new order of things it is an easy matter for any persons to get race track information, and that no trouble would be experienced by the people at Kenilworth. The taking away of the wire by the Western Union Telegraph Company after the fight was made against the pool room by Alien W. Mallery, Thomas N. Mohler. Francis J. Carmody and others, it is said, was partly due to influence brought to bear upon the company by interests similar to those of the people who conducted the pool room. Mr. Carmody, one of those who fought the pool room, has received the nomination for the state senate on the republican ticket, and his opposition to the pool room, it is predicted, will win him

Jurors Express Indignation.

Some of the members of the jury at Upper Marlboro have expressed their indignation at the remarks of Judge Merrick respecting their failure to return a verdict of guilty in the case. Their conclusion was reached, they claim, in accordance with the case as set up by the defense. It was their contention that the Maryland Telegraph Company was organized under the laws of the state to carry en a legitimate business, and that it had complied with the terms of its char-

Judge Merrick refused to allow the defense to introduce in evidence the incorporation papers or other ddcumentary evidence, and Attorneys James C. Rogers, Robert W. Wells and Edmund Burke noted exceptions to the court's rulings on several propositions in order to the case to the court of appeals in event of conviction.

No Testimony in Rebuttal.

No testimony in rebuttal was offered by the state, and the case was submitted after arguments on both sides. State's Attorney Magruder made the closing argument to the jury. He made an able argument upon the testimony presented on behalf of the state, and felt confident that the jury would re turn a verdict of guilty. As soon as he realized that the verdict was for acquittal he regarded it as useless to expect a conviction in any of the pool room cases at the October term of the court.

state's attorney to postpone the hearing of the additional cases that Judge Merrick took occasion to indulge in his remarks respecting the jury, as printed.
